A SLEEPING VOLCANOE.

The Lord is with us, say the Boers and Paul Kruger. It should be admitted that there is some unseen force directing the South African Boers—whether it is the mental force of their commanders or some other and more subtle agency is not ascertainable from any positive cause other than events, upon which every observer can form an opinion, to meet his views on a subject, that is taking the form of a problem that involves more than a little powder and shot. The writer is not of those who believe in the occult when applied to natural things or to natural conditions, as the universe is systematized and is subject to the force of universal law, but there is every circumstance or fact present to lead to a belief that the time has come in the order of things as directed by universal law, when physical force applied to government will be among the condemned powers in government.

Should the belief not be well founded that war will not be among the forces of the future to enforce obedience to government, there are certainly many reasons present that will lead to a conclusion, that its usefulness for enforcing obedience by any alien people to an alien nation is among the conditions that applied to the earlier history of the race.

When the usefulness of war has ceased, it should be classed among extinct forces as a means of government where it properly belongs. There is every reason to support a belief that the war era is past, and if that is true, the means are present in the order of things under the direction of natural law to defeat its subject, as it is now among the useful forces for the direction of men. The Boers have broken over the lines which were given them by the armies of Great Britain and Lord Kitchener is applying for large reinforcements to build a new canal for these South African fence breakers, who have appropriated Cape Colony for a pasture without the permission of the owners or the permission of its protectors.

There may be seen a likeness in the changed relations in South Africa of a supposed exhausted volcano in a new eruption, while its war lavas are covering the land and eating up the wealth of Cape Colony. Volunteers have been called for in the east of the Colony to turn its streams, which are descending from the west under a threat to cover and lay waste the entire Colony. Strange as it may appear, the stream is gathering volume as it descends from its native fastness, by becoming more strong from new accessions it receives on its way.

The late eruption is likely to cover Cape Colony, which has the appearance at this time that it will become new crater whose outbursts will mingle with those of the former sleeping volcano. While volunteers in Cape Colony have been called for under pay of five shillings per day and found, there is no less demand made upon the home government for additional forces. It is evident that the war spirit was not subdued in a manner that could lead to a supposed breaking up of the Boer forces, and an abandonment by them of resistance to the conquering armies of Great Britain.

The war is renewed upon different lines, as it will be conducted under other circumstances than those that were present at its beginning. The application of new methods arising upon changed relations have made an appearance. These new methods at this time appear to be more effective than the tactics used when war was declared. It is reported that Cape Colony Boers have furnished the Transvaal and Free State forces with fifteen hundred men, and additional continue to be made as opportunity by invasion of Cape Colony is given to the Cape Colony Boers to become patriots.

There is something in the air of South Africa at this time that these Cape Colony Boers are breathing that is in opposition to a passive or negative position on the question of liberty and self government. Self government has become and is a part of a fixed system for the government of the race. It is in the order of things, while the monarchial system and spirit is old and worn out. It has been kept alive for the last hundred years by clipping its wings and feeding it, to flatter the vanity of played-out lords and barons, which has aided many of them to continue dalliance with the daughters of American millionaires, till they have secured sufficient to pay their debts and to continue their debauchery, which is akin to the system that gave them their titles.

The world is speedily becoming a world of independent men who understand their relation to it, and who mean to support and keep the relation they sustain at the cannon's mouth, against encroachments sought to be made by monarchial power and its assumption of superior authority over mankind because of a lie called "divine right of kings," which is no more or less than blasphemy.

Is Not Satisfactory.

There is a good deal of complaint in the matter of the fire alarm. A few blocks away from the engine house it is impossible to hear the bell, except under the most favorable conditions.

The bell is a big affair with plenty of long power, but the striker seems to be afflicted with a weak back. It is guaranteed to strike a 600 pound blow, but does it?

The Appointed Time.

The town and county fathers will be in session today. How many of our citizens have the health of Reno sufficiently at heart to go down and present the proposition to have the Floriston Company cease making a filthy sewer of the Truckee?

Government Seeds.

The annual distribution of seeds from the Department of Agriculture will begin the latter part of January. Residents of Nevada can obtain garden seed by promptly sending their names and addresses to our Senators and Congressmen.

PRANKS PLAYED BY THE GALE

The Wind Destroyed Thousands of Dollars Worth of Property.

The severest wind storm that has visited Reno since the day of its destruction by fire in 1879, made havoc with all moveable things yesterday morning. In every part of the town can be seen evidences of the hurricane.
Chimneys scattered their bricks; poles went down and tangled up telephone, electric light and fire alarm wires in inextricable confusion. Fences projected themselves across lots and shingles forsook roofs and went sailing away like a covey of Zeppelin's air ships.

The wind was from the west and had been gathering in intensity for twenty-four hours. The violence of the gale was such that the most substantial buildings in the city rocked to their foundations.

MOST SERIOUS DAMAGE DONE.

R. W. Parry's livery stable is probably the largest structure in Reno, being a three story brick 100x175 feet.
Mr. Parry and his family was residing temporarily in the second story.

At 9:30 the storm reached its height and blew in the west side of the south end of the building half way down.
Tons of brick crashed into the dining room where Mr. Parry, Mrs. Parry and their three children were sitting.
When this avalanche of brick, mortar, lath and plastering fell, a cloud of dust arose and then there was a moment's silence. Bob found himself alive and all right, barring a few scrapes and bruises, but what of his family? He called to them and got replies through the blinding dust.

By a miracle none were seriously injured although the furniture in the room was crushed to bits. They quickly made their escape, fearing that the balance of the building would fall upon them.

Viewed from the street, the big building looked as though it had been canonaded. Part of the wall fell outward and smashed the balcony into kindling.

Now for a deed of heroism. Lou Sessions, an employe in the stable saw that if a gust of wind would come from the south it would finish the building. Snatching a long, stout rope he climbed to the top of the stable and anchored the roof securely. It was a perilous position. With every pulsa-tion of the wind the great roof lifted and rocked, threatening every moment to crumple up and sail across the street. A crowd of people watched Mr. Sessions and applauded his brave efforts to save his employer's property.

Bob Parry seems to be especially marked by the spirits of fire and storm, but even this last catastrophe will neither down nor daunt him. He estimates his loss at $2,500.

OTHER PRANKS OF THE STORM.

J. A. Po-hoff's livery stable sustained about $300 damage. The sign was knocked off the top of the structure and the brick walls cracked from garret to cellar. The roof was nearly crashed away—it was loosened from its fastenings and split open along the comb. The horses took fright and did a little more damage with their heels.

Serious harm was done the high school building. A window was blown in and an outhouse partially unroofed.
Here the hurricane played a peculiar prank. It lifted the boys' playhouse and carried it up in the air and over the girls' playhouse. It fell nearly a hundred feet away and was smashed into fragments. This building was 12x70 feet.

The windmill at Thomas Tenney's residence, 108 State street, whirled itself into smithereens. One of the fane went soaring through the air and crashed into a window of the Manning house and another piece played the same trick to the residence of E. L.
Williams.

The Central Pacific freight station looked a little lopsided last evening, having lost part of its shed roof during the hurricane.

Windows were blown in at the University and the Asylum. Considerable damage was done to John Sparks' residence.

An Ex-Officer.

Troop M, Fifth United States Cavalry,

Sergeant Baker has just received a

He leaves Monday to visit his mother at Ely.

A SUDDEN
DEATH

Harry Brooks, the Horse Trainer, Is Found Dead in a Hotel.

Harry Brooks is dead. Whether by his own hand or by natural causes will probably be known to-day, for Coroner Peers will hold an inquest over the remains at 10 this morning in the Central undertaking parlors.

Between 8 and 9 Wednesday night Brooks obtained a room at the Arcade.
Night Clerk N. B. Clark noticed that he appeared melancholy. Gus Williams took him to his room and bade him a pleasant "Good night."

About 2:30 yesterday afternoon Mrs.
Tote, the housekeeper, rapped on his door, but received no answer. The door was locked. Billie Williams, the porter, was called. He got access to the room by a window, and found Brooks lying on the floor, a corpse.
He had not gone to bed and had merely removed his coat.

Brooks was a native of Indiana, and was aged 41 years. He had no relatives in Reno. For the better part of three years he lived here and subsisted by training race horses, for which he had great adaptation.

About ten days ago he grew restless and melancholy. He began to drink heavily and kept away from his former acquaintances, seeming to brood on some real or fancied trouble.

The deceased was an excellent fellow in many respects. He loved horses and, though a graduate druggist of considerable proficiency, he preferred the life of a horseman. It is not yet known what disposition will be made of the remains.

BLEW OFF
THE RAILS

An N-C-O. Train a Victim of the Storm—Several People Hurt.

The regular train on the N-C-O. was derailed and several cars, including the passenger coach, turned over at 2 o'clock yesterday, at Doyle. Only one passenger was injured, so far as learned.

LATER—The N-C-O. train arrived at 8:30 last night. It was blown from the track 150 yards south of Doyle station. The passenger coach was a complete wreck. Three passengers and three trainmen were hurt. Mrs.
E. R. Dodge of this city suffered the severest injuries.

Two freight cars were also rolled over.

E. A. Talbot of Constantia ranch arrived with liniments and bandages and eased the hurts of the sufferers.
The passengers were brought in to Reno in a freight car.

California Weddings.

Yesterday the following cases were tried and tied in the Reno matrimonial court:

Cupid vs. Ed. S. Ganby and Mary L.
Burdick of Ventura.

Cupid vs. Charles Peters and Jennie Rutherford of Oakland.

Cupid vs. Charles H. Mosack and Maud V. Heath of French Corral.

Cupid vs. H. K. Rabin of San Francisco and Gertrude Gage of Stockton.
All the cases were decided in favor of the defendants.

Wires Down.

Direct telegraphic communication with California points was out off last night. A big gale is raging at Sacramento. Snow is falling on the summit.
It is four feet deep at Greenville and two feet at Susanville.

The Very Best.

No better home-made candy than Manheim's, because he uses the purest and best materials. He makes it fresh every day.

Small Blaze But Dangerous One.

Yesterday morning the department was summoned to squelch a small combustion on the roof of Stewart and Metes' meat market. A roll of blankets was discovered to be blazing merrily. Evidently some tenant of an adjoining lodging house had been in search of an arier place to sleep.

A few buckets of water extinguished the fire without assistance from the department. Had it not been discovered in time, the business section of Reno would have been badly scorched owing to the terrific gale.

Many Things Are Meant

By many dealers who claim to handle groceries. When they advertise GOOD GROCERIES no mention is made of PRICE. When price is mentioned QUALITY IS OVER-LOOKED. Again, sometimes they dwell on the virtues of a LARGE STOCK. In this case no claim is made to carrying FRESH GOODS.

We Preach the Three Main Virtues
